During the past two weeks partridge have been coming down from the hills to the lowland covers in Bennington in large numbers and some good bags are being made. The season for hunting them will expire December 1. But few quail have been reported in that section for this season. Ducks are showing up in good numbers, but the large flocks do not remain there long, as too many hunters are on the watch for them.

On account of the large number of other cases only one divorce case was heard last term. The presiding judge is said to have jokingly remarked during the last term that several of the divorce cases had been pending so long that the parties might be ready for reconciliation, while the others ought to have time to be reconciled if they would. The docket is crowded and the term promises to be a long one.

Son Lost Mother.

The prize pig story comes from Essex Junction, says The Burlington News. John R. Curtis, of that place, has just killed a three-year-old sow that weighed dressed 510 pounds. This in itself is quite a sizeable story but the financial results achieved from the offspring of the sow far exceed this. In the past three years the sow has raised 64 pigs in litters of 14, 15, 17, and 18, the survivors of which have netted Mr. Curtis
